

RUSSIAN REVERT TO VODKA, DRINK CAUSES COLLAPSE

Prohibition, Enforced by Czar's Decree, Is Quickly
Abandoned by Bolshevik Who Pillage Wine Cellars
of Former Czar and Grand Duke and Inaugurate
Era of Widespread Anarchy and Disorder.

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 23.—Vodka, the Russian national drink and curse, is responsible for the reign of disorder and the widespread anarchy in that country today, according to the Russian correspondent of the London Observer. Writing of the new Russian collapse, the correspondent says:

"It will be remembered that the Russian revolution took place under the aegis of compulsory temperance. It was the one salutary legacy of the old regime. But the great fault of the czar's making his people sober by a ukase was that the compulsory sobriety was imposed on a nation which had not been accustomed to the drink habit by education and enlightenment. With the characteristic Russian resignation, the Russian people submitted to the imperial ukase as a regrettable but unavoidable evil. Millions of the Russian peasants are working men, and they covered for the first time in their lives that they could easily do without vodka, and settled to a life of comfortable and contented temperance."

Czar's Decree Abolished.
The revolution, however, abolished many of the czar's decrees, but it jealously preserved the prohibition, recognizing its sobering influence on the masses already somewhat unbalanced by the revolutionary upheaval. Gradually, however, as the anarchy in the country became more and more widespread, the manufacture and consumption of vodka increased to alarming proportions. Towards the end of Kerensky's regime, according to professor Touganovsky, a leading Russian economist, there was hardly a village in Russia without a secret vodka distillery.

Pillaging the Wine Cellars.
"One of the first acts of the Bolshevik regime was to abolish the new prohibition and declare all the laws promulgated by the czar, including prohibition, null and void. There was no longer any need for secret manufacture of vodka or secret drinking. The Bolshevik principle of 'everybody a law unto himself' has now become operative in such a glaring manner as in the matter of drinking. The wine vaults of the czar and the grand dukes in Petrograd and Moscow, the smaller wine cellars of the prosperous citizens and towns and country houses, wine shops in every town and village throughout Russia, became the prey of the hungry Bolsheviks. In addition, according to the same authority and fully substantiated newspaper accounts, vodka distilleries sprang up in every town and village of Russia."

Orgies of Drunkenness Follow.
There cannot be any doubt that excessive drinking, with the resultant moral and social demoralization, has played a considerable part in bringing about the present state of anarchy in Russia. The worst agricultural disorders, the worst cases of defection and rioting among the disarmed soldiers, and the wholesale murder of officers, landowners, employers and 'bourgeois' workmen, and peasant, invariably took place amidst or closely following orgies of drunkenness."

Germans Loot Churches and Residences in Italy of Art for Berlin Show

By C. CIANFARRA.

ROME, Italy, Feb. 23.—The report that an exhibition of work of art collected throughout the Italian invaded provinces has been inaugurated at the Berlin Academy of Fine Arts has caused a tremendous sensation here. This is because the Italian public has been on more than one occasion formally assured that every object of art having any intrinsic value had long been removed from the museums, churches and galleries in the war zone or in cities and towns likely to be bombarded by airplanes.

Churches Are Being Looted.
The Berlin report further says that German troops have been both dispatched to the two invaded provinces their best art experts in order to superintend the removal to Berlin and Vienna of the masterpieces of art which the churches are being systematically looted of glasses, lace and metals, and a large number of church bells have been removed to the Alps, never, perhaps, to return.

Commander Ugo Oletti, member of the Supreme Council of Fine Arts, who, with the rank of captain, has for three years superintended the work of protecting monuments in the war zone, said in an interview that whatever the invaders have found and have been able to remove, was found in the Venetian patriarchate built during the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries.

Art is Looted From Private Houses.
"The art collections belonging to the state," Capt. Oletti said, "have not been looted for the simple reason that they are safe hundreds of miles away. I alone superintended the removal of over 1000 large cases of art, books and manuscripts. On the other hand, it is more probable that the invaders have found a good booty in the private collections."

among which there were some of immense artistic and historical value. "Some of the villas in which these collections were stored have also been greatly damaged by the enemy artillery during the invasion. We have, for instance, just ascertained that count Soderini's villa, near Nervese, is nothing but a heap of ruins, and with the villa some of Tiepolo's most beautiful frescoes have been destroyed."

"The same thing would have happened to the Tiepolo frescoes in the Cordellina villa, near Montebelluna, had they been still there. In this case, a few days before the invasion, we finally prevailed on the proprietor to let us remove them, and the frescoes are now in a safe place."

"The temple that Canova, the greatest enemy of the Italian government, between the Renaissance and the 18th century, erected to his glory and to that of his native town, has also been destroyed, everything worth taking which the sculptor had adorned it would have also met with the same fate had not the department of fine arts decided to remove them at the very outbreak of hostilities."

"According to another report in possession of the Italian government, the equestrian bronze monument to Victor Emmanuel II, standing in one of Udine's public squares, has also been looted and is being removed to Austria. In this case the conduct of the Austrians is in strong contrast with that of the Italian military authorities."

Austrian Art Unmolested.
"When our troops entered Gorizia the first thing that attracted their attention was the archduke Maximilian's monument in Gorizia's public square. Now the archduke was Italy's arch-enemy, and the monument an insult to the Italian nation. Nevertheless, the Italians never thought of taking the monument, and the Austrians found it in a better condition than when they left the city."

Belgians Will Not Obey Order Of the Germans

Effort of Germans to Force
Natives To Restore
Towns Fails.

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 23.—Information from Belgium says the Germans have tried several times to induce the communal authorities of Belgian towns and villages to undertake the restoration of the buildings destroyed by them at the beginning of the war. In order, no doubt, to avoid paying the necessary indemnity at the time of a final settlement, the Germans, however, have never succeeded, and a great many Flemish communes have been heavily fined lately for refusing to obey the German orders.

It is reported that the German authorities are now promising to pay half the cost of the restoration of the Belgian state which they administer, hoping, doubtless, that the communal authorities will be prompted by local interest to accept the proposals. This new maneuver does not seem to have found more favor in the eyes of the Belgian people, and a commune of Belgium (near Liege) has been condemned to a fine of 75,000 francs (3750 pounds) for refusing to rebuild the village with the country's money.

British Protect and Germans Threaten In Cities They Capture

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 23.—Contrasted with the German proclamation threatening to punish upon the women and children of Udim, in the field for failing to work in the field for 10 hours every day, under German domination, the order issued by the British commander to the people of Jerusalem after the capture of that city, shows the different manner in which the Entente and the Central Powers wage war. The British order reads:

"It is my desire that every person should pursue his lawful business without fear of interruption. Furthermore, the order issued by the British commander to the people of Jerusalem after the capture of that city, shows the different manner in which the Entente and the Central Powers wage war. The British order reads:

Women Replace Men As Bank Clerks in Germany, Only One Is Dishonest

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Feb. 23.—Women bank clerks virtually have replaced men in Germany from the early days of the war, but the first case of an embezzling woman bank clerk has just occurred in Berlin. The accused girl, Rosa Neumann, was convicted of stealing $6000 in Russian securities from the Dresdner bank and was sentenced to eight months' imprisonment. She stated, during the trial, that she had been entrusted with the securities by the bank, and that she had sold them for food and theater tickets.

Budapest Cafes Must Serve War Dinners At 80 Cents a Plate Now

Berne, Switzerland, Feb. 23.—All restaurants and hotels in Budapest provide 'war dinners' at 80 cents, according to the latest food regulations. The menu must consist of two soups, a meat or vegetable dish, a dessert, and a drink. Small restaurants may not charge more than 60 cents for a meat course with vegetables.

Winston Churchill Gives Carnegie Medal to Hero

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 23.—Winston Churchill presented to Robert John Kirkham, 42, a member of the Arsenal inspection staff, a framed Carnegie certificate for bravery. When a bomb was seen to be smoking in a munition factory, Kirkham picked it up, ran with it to the door, and threw it out of the building, a moment before it exploded, thus saving the lives of a number of men and girls.

Camouflage Does Not Make Ship Invisible

British Admiralty Has New System That Is Found Effective.

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 23.—The admiralty, it is officially stated, are fully alive to the value of camouflage in naval warfare. The system of camouflaging ships, however, has not been organized. The principles governing it cannot be divulged, but it may be said that it has not invisibility for its basis.

The theory of rendering ships invisible at sea by painting them in various colors is no longer tenable. It has been finally established that unless a vessel and her crew are rendered absolutely invisible no useful purpose is served.

German and Austrian Unions Disagree Over Demobilization Plans

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Feb. 23.—The German and Austrian labor unions are engaged in a squabble over demobilization plans. According to the Austrian labor paper Der Kampf, both are agreed that the demobilization of the army longer than is absolutely necessary would be a disaster to the economy. In regard to the exact process of demobilization they differ. The Austrians insist that the first consideration should be given to the demobilization of the army longer than is absolutely necessary would be a disaster to the economy. Famous Road to Haarlem To Be Vegetable Garden, Bulb Culture Abandoned

LONGER, Netherlands, Feb. 23.—No longer will the famous road to Haarlem present an uninterrupted vista of flowering bulbs, when spring comes, but the order issued by the British commander to the people of Jerusalem after the capture of that city, shows the different manner in which the Entente and the Central Powers wage war. The British order reads:

But One in 20 German Prisoners in England Are Worked on Farms

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 23.—Only one in 20 of the able bodied German prisoners in this country have been utilized for work on farms, according to the Agricultural Gazette. The journal says there must be well over 100,000 able bodied prisoners in the kingdom and such a number could do wonders in the way of food production if organized. Within the last few days the number of prisoners actually working on the farms was less than 5000, the paper asserts.

Berlin Motor Buses Do Losing Business

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Feb. 23.—The Berlin Motor Omnibus company, which was obliged to conduct its business last year almost entirely with the use of stolen vehicles owing to the prohibition of the use of gasoline or other fuels, ended the year with a deficit of $125,000.

German Youth Arrested, Told Soldiers to Quit

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Feb. 23.—An 11 year old German workman has been sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment in Berlin for calling out to a passing detachment of soldiers: "Throw away your rifles and make an end of it."

AMERICANS JOIN THE MILLIONS ON LONG TRAIL TO TRENCHES

March From Rest Camps to Front Line Trenches Made at Night; Without Noise and With Few Rests on the Long, Muddy, Tiresome March; Night Relief Described and One Description Suffices for All.

By JOHN L. BALDERSON.
PARIS, France, Feb. 23.—The long trail to the trenches! It is a trail that tens of millions of men of nearly all the nations and races of the globe have yearly tramped over during four years, a trail that for some millions was their last. And now thousands of American boys are about to tread that trail where legions that have vanished like smoke have trod before them. It is the same trail, anywhere on the western front, and this description of how a relief is accomplished while actually written from observation on the British front in the north, applies just as well to our own boys, going into action on a rest town in comparative safety in the rear.

Activity in Rest Camp.
The light is dim and the evening shadows are falling over the rest camp so that the great square which the battalion went to parade is darkening with the passing minutes, and the twinkling candle lights from the surrounding huts grow more and more distinct. Shadowy forms are flitting across the square. Now and then voices sound, quick words of command and question, and the long trail to the trenches is about to commence.

Where Bullets Are Thick.
At last the battalions arrive at the entrance to the communication trench. The men are all lying down, not from fatigue, but to give the smallest possible target to the bullets which are whizzing about the trench. Each man has a bullet tucked into the earth a few inches from his foot. "Peep!" goes a whisper, striding off from the top of a ruined wall. "Did you see those sparks?" asks a voice. Around is the confusion of the communication trench. Buildings, shattered trees, and disrupted roads and fields. In front, the night is dark. The trench is a black, striding off from the top of a ruined wall. "Did you see those sparks?" asks a voice. Around is the confusion of the communication trench.

On the Flying Line.
The communication trench into the firing line, past the garrison standing up in the firestep, until each section stands before its appointed position.
